

Dear Friends and Supporters of The Cold War Museum,

The May 1 issue of the Cold War Times is now posted for viewing online at www.coldwartimes.com. Our next public Spy Tour is scheduled for Saturday May 27. Private tours dates are available. Visit www.spytour.com for details.

If this email was sent to you in error, reply with REMOVE in the subject line, and you will be removed from our email database. Please note that the Cold War Times is distributed four times per year on February 1, May 1, August 1, and November 1 to a dedicated email list. Recently, The Cold War Times was spoofed by a professional spammer that used lsmp@coldwartimes.com and similar variations for the return address. We are not involved in any email marketing campaigns and do not sell our mailing lists.

Because of an uncontrollable amount of SPAM email that I receive, I am forced to use www.spamarrest.com to filter my incoming email. When you send me an email for the first time, my system will send a reply to your email address asking a question. Once the answer is received back at my system all of your emails will be allowed through to my inbox. If you would like to be removed, this step must be followed so that I can receive your email and know to delete you from the system. I apologize for any inconvenience this may cause.

Negotiations are in their final stages with Fairfax County Park Authority for use of the Lorton Nike Missile site. The Museum expects to occupy the site as early as this fall. October 13-15, we are planning a ground breaking ceremony in conjunction with a conference on the 1956 Hungarian and Polish Crises. Sergei Khrushchev, the son of Nikita Khrushchev, Mr. Laszlo Rajk, the son of an executed Communist leader of Hungary, and a representative from the Polish Embassy and Institute of World Politics will be participating. In addition, there will be a book signing with authors who have written on this subject and a panel comprised of Nike Missile veterans that will discuss the history of the Nike missile program with specific insight into Lorton site history. Sponsorship opportunities are available. If you would like more information, please send an email inquiry.

I am pleased to announce that Congressman Tom Davis and Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Chairman Jerry Connolly have accepted our invitation to serve on our Advisory Board of Directors. I am excited to be in talks with representatives from the Nike Missile Veterans Association, the Pershing Professionals, the Bay of Pigs Museum, and the Atomic Bunker Harnekop Monument in Germany about working together on our mutual efforts to preserve Cold War history. Senator George Allen and Governor Tim Kaine from Virginia are aware of our progress and I expect to brief them on our efforts later this year.

It is important that Cold War museums and related institutions join together to form The International Association of Cold War Museums (SM). I did not create The Cold War Museum with the idea of just glorifying America's role in the Cold War. I have a dream of seeing a whole network of museums around the world working together to keep this incredible Cold War period in history alive. There is so much we could do to educate people on the many aspects of the Cold War. Our webpage acts and will expand as a central Internet home page that will give easy access to information about all the museums, memorials, and libraries that document Cold War history. By working together and combining our resources, we can make sure that future generations never forget this important period of world history. As a final goal, we could expand to include Cold War Museums, Memorials, and Libraries.

If you have an interest in helping to establish The International Association of Cold War Museums(SM), please send me an email.

Between March 29 and April 2 I visited Miami, Florida to meet with Cuban alumni from the Bay of Pigs and Cuban Missile Crisis. Special thanks to Julio Decastro, one of the Cuban veterans, Ed Sherry with the South Florida Research Group, Charles Mahoney with Coral Reef High School, and Don Slesnic

the Mayor of Coral Gables, Florida who introduced me to a variety of people who are interested in working with us to preserve Cold War history. These gentlemen and their friends have indicated an interest in our efforts to find an assortment of photos, uniforms, and artifacts from this period as well as oral and written histories. As a result of their support I gave three lectures during my visit, received some wonderful artifacts, uniforms, and photos for the museum collection, and visited with veterans at the Bay of Pigs Museum. During my visit, I recorded three oral histories from Cuban Missile Crisis veterans and had the chance to talk with the Director, Chairman, and members of the Bay of Pigs Museum (See article inside) as well as other interested parties. I also had the pleasure of talking with Castro's daughter, Ms. Alina Fernandez, about a variety of Cold War related topics. Talks are ongoing with these Miami supporters to open a Miami Chapter of the Cold War Museum.

Memorial Day weekend is just around the corner. For the past several years, Museum Co-Founder John Welch, has participated in the annual Rolling Thunder

POW/MIA ride on Washington (www.rollingthunder1.com). Because of John's dedication, the Museum has again been invited to participate in the activities surrounding Rolling Thunder. If you would like to volunteer and help us during the Memorial Day weekend, please let me know. We are looking forward to strengthening our relationship with this group to help preserve the POW/MIA history of our Cold War veterans within the Cold War Museum.

Recently, I had the opportunity to talk briefly with the Ambassadors from the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, and Paraguay about our efforts to preserve the International aspects of Cold War history. I am in the process of following up with these three Ambassadors and look forward to working with them in the near future. The Cold war was a World War that had an impact on every county in the world. Do you know of other veteran groups, Ambassadors, or Cold War alumni groups that would have an interest in preserving their Cold War history within the Cold War Museum? If so, please have them send an email of introduction to me so that we can discuss ways to work together.

I would like to thank USS Pueblo crewmember, Dale Rigby, for donating his "warm blue coat" and other items from his USS Pueblo experience to the museum. The photos, photocopies, bumper sticker, and documentation are a wonderful addition to our collection and will allow visitors to learn about another important part of Cold War history. I would also like to extend a thank you to my friends in Miami, especially Julio Decastro who donated his uniform and assorted items to the Museum. Over the last ten years Cold War Museum supporters have donated in excess of $2 million dollars in Cold War artifacts to the Museum. The Cold War Museum will soon take possession of four Nike Hercules Missiles and one Nike Atlas Missile from the White Sands Missile Range. We have the largest collection of Civil Defense items in America. In addition, we have artifacts from the USS Pueblo, the USS liberty, the United States Military Liaison Mission, and assorted Cold War era shoot downs. One donor a few years back donated over 15,000 Soviet and former Eastern Bloc Country flags, banners, regalia, and uniforms. Recently we added a 5000 sq ft Cuban Missile Crisis display to our collection. We need your financial help to assist with the care, display, and storage of these Cold War artifacts.

If you can volunteer, write a written history, record an oral history, take a Spy Tour, arrange a lecture, send an artifact, or make a financial donation, now is the time that we need your support the most. If you know of friends or family that would like to assist, please let them know that the Museum needs their support too.

We need to raise an initial $3 million over the next two year to keep on track with opening our interim museum. Now is the time that we need your help. Donations to The Cold War Museum can be made through a secure online website at www.guidestar.org/partners/networkforgood/donate.jsp?ein=54-1819817 or www.justgive.org/giving/donate.jsp?charityId=18894. In addition, you can help support the Cold War Museum by doing online searches through www.goodsearch.com/Default.aspx. For every search done in this medium, the Cold War Museum will receive a small donation.

Please consider making a donation to the Cold War Museum. Your gift will help us plan for the new physical location. Tax-deductible contributions and artifact donations to the Museum will ensure that future generations will remember Cold War events and personalities that forever altered our understanding of national security, international relations, and personal sacrifice for one's country. Please help spread the word about the Museum. Together we can make this vision a reality. If you should have any questions, want additional information, or would like to subscribe to our Cold War Times email newsletter distribution list, send an email to editor@coldwar.org

Thank you for your continued support.

Francis Gary Powers, Jr.
Founder
The Cold War Museum
P.O. Box 178
Fairfax, VA 22038
703-273-2381 Museum
703-273-4903 Museum Fax
gpowersjr@coldwar.org
www.coldwar.org

Dear Friends and Supporters of The Cold War Museum,

The May 1 issue of the Cold War Times is now posted for viewing online at www.coldwartimes.com. Our next public Spy Tour is scheduled for Saturday May 27. Private tours dates are available. Visit www.spytour.com for details.

If this email was sent to you in error, reply with REMOVE in the subject line, and you will be removed from our email database. Please note that the Cold War Times is distributed four times per year on February 1, May 1, August 1, and November 1 to a dedicated email list. Recently, The Cold War Times was spoofed by a professional spammer that used lsmp@coldwartimes.com and similar variations for the return address. We are not involved in any email marketing campaigns and do not sell our mailing lists.

Because of an uncontrollable amount of SPAM email that I receive, I am forced to use www.spamarrest.com to filter my incoming email. When you send me an email for the first time, my system will send a reply to your email address asking a question. Once the answer is received back at my system all of your emails will be allowed through to my inbox. If you would like to be removed, this step must be followed so that I can receive your email and know to delete you from the system. I apologize for any inconvenience this may cause.

Negotiations are in their final stages with Fairfax County Park Authority for use of the Lorton Nike Missile site. The Museum expects to occupy the site as early as this fall. October 13-15, we are planning a ground breaking ceremony in conjunction with a conference on the 1956 Hungarian and Polish Crises. Sergei Khrushchev, the son of Nikita Khrushchev, Mr. Laszlo Rajk, the son of an executed Communist leader of Hungary, and a representative from the Polish Embassy and Institute of World Politics will be participating. In addition, there will be a book signing with authors who have written on this subject and a panel comprised of Nike Missile veterans that will discuss the history of the Nike missile program with specific insight into Lorton site history. Sponsorship opportunities are available. If you would like more information, please send an email inquiry.

I am pleased to announce that Congressman Tom Davis and Fairfax County Board of Supervisors Chairman Jerry Connolly have accepted our invitation to serve on our Advisory Board of Directors. I am excited to be in talks with representatives from the Nike Missile Veterans Association, the Pershing Professionals, the Bay of Pigs Museum, and the Atomic Bunker Harnekop Monument in Germany about working together on our mutual efforts to preserve Cold War history. Senator George Allen and Governor Tim Kaine from Virginia are aware of our progress and I expect to brief them on our efforts later this year.

It is important that Cold War museums and related institutions join together to form The International Association of Cold War Museums(SM). I did not create The Cold War Museum with the idea of just glorifying America's role in the Cold War. I have a dream of seeing a whole network of museums around the world working together to keep this incredible Cold War period in history alive. There is so much we could do to educate people on the many aspects of the Cold War. Our webpage acts and will expand as a central Internet home page that will give easy access to information about all the museums, memorials, and libraries that document Cold War history. By working together and combining our resources, we can make sure that future generations never forget this important period of world history. As a final goal, we could expand to include Cold War Museums, Memorials, and Libraries. If you have an interest in helping to establish The International Association of Cold War Museums(SM), please send me an email.

Between March 29 and April 2 I visited Miami, Florida to meet with Cuban alumni from the Bay of Pigs and Cuban Missile Crisis. Special thanks to Julio Decastro, one of the Cuban veterans, Ed Sherry with the South Florida Research Group, Charles Mahoney with Coral Reef High School, and Don Slesnic the Mayor of Coral Gables, Florida who introduced me to a variety of people who are interested in working with us to preserve Cold War history. These gentlemen and their friends have indicated an interest in our efforts to find an assortment of photos, uniforms, and artifacts from this period as well as oral and written histories. As a result of their support I gave three lectures during my visit, received some wonderful artifacts, uniforms, and photos for the museum collection, and visited with veterans at the Bay of Pigs Museum. During my visit, I recorded three oral histories from Cuban Missile Crisis veterans and had the chance to talk with the Director, Chairman, and members of the Bay of Pigs Museum (See article inside) as well as other interested parties. I also had the pleasure of talking with Castro's daughter, Ms. Alina Fernandez, about a variety of Cold War related topics. Talks are ongoing with these Miami supporters to open a Miami Chapter of the Cold War Museum.

Memorial Day weekend is just around the corner. For the past several years, Museum Co-Founder John Welch, has participated in the annual Rolling Thunder POW/MIA ride on Washington (www.rollingthunder1.com). Because of John's dedication, the Museum has again been invited to participate in the activities surrounding Rolling Thunder. If you would like to volunteer and help us during the Memorial Day weekend, please let me know. We are looking forward to strengthening our relationship with this group to help preserve the POW/MIA history of our Cold War veterans within the Cold War Museum.

Recently, I had the opportunity to talk briefly with the Ambassadors from the Dominican Republic, Ecuador, and Paraguay about our efforts to preserve the International aspects of Cold War history. I am in the process of following up with these three Ambassadors and look forward to working with them in the near future. The Cold war was a World War that had an impact on every county in the world. Do you know of other veteran groups, Ambassadors, or Cold War alumni groups that would have an interest in preserving their Cold War history within the Cold War Museum? If so, please have them send an email of introduction to me so that we can discuss ways to work together.

I would like to thank USS Pueblo crewmember, Dale Rigby, for donating his "warm blue coat" and other items from his USS Pueblo experience to the museum. The photos, photocopies, bumper sticker, and documentation are a wonderful addition to our collection and will allow visitors to learn about another important part of Cold War history. I would also like to extend a thank you to my friends in Miami, especially Julio Decastro who donated his uniform and assorted items to the Museum. Over the last ten years Cold War Museum supporters have donated in excess of $2 million dollars in Cold War artifacts to the Museum. The Cold War Museum will soon take possession of four Nike Hercules Missiles and one Nike Atlas Missile from the White Sands Missile Range. We have the largest collection of Civil Defense items in America. In addition, we have artifacts from the USS Pueblo, the USS liberty, the United States Military Liaison Mission, and assorted Cold War era shoot downs. One donor a few years back donated over 15,000 Soviet and former Eastern Bloc Country flags, banners, regalia, and uniforms. Recently we added a 5000 sq ft Cuban Missile Crisis display to our collection. We need your financial help to assist with the care, display, and storage of these Cold War artifacts.

If you can volunteer, write a written history, record an oral history, take a Spy Tour, arrange a lecture, send an artifact, or make a financial donation, now is the time that we need your support the most. If you know of friends or family that would like to assist, please let them know that the Museum needs their support too.

We need to raise an initial $3 million over the next two year to keep on track with opening our interim museum. Now is the time that we need your help. Donations to The Cold War Museum can be made through a secure online website at www.guidestar.org/partners/networkforgood/donate.jsp?ein=54-1819817 or www.justgive.org/giving/donate.jsp?charityId=18894. In addition, you can help support the Cold War Museum by doing online searches through www.goodsearch.com/Default.aspx. For every search done in this medium, the Cold War Museum will receive a small donation.

Please consider making a donation to the Cold War Museum. Your gift will help us plan for the new physical location. Tax-deductible contributions and artifact donations to the Museum will ensure that future generations will remember Cold War events and personalities that forever altered our understanding of national security, international relations, and personal sacrifice for one's country. Please help spread the word about the Museum. Together we can make this vision a reality. If you should have any questions, want additional information, or would like to subscribe to our Cold War Times email newsletter distribution list, send an email to editor@coldwar.org

Thank you for your continued support.